

A close-up photograph of a bouquet of flowers. On the left, a large, bright red dahlia flower is in full bloom, showing its many layers of petals and a yellow center. To its right, there are several clusters of small, purple verbena flowers. The background is filled with lush green leaves and stems, some of which are slightly out of focus. The overall scene is bright and colorful, with natural lighting that highlights the textures of the petals and leaves.

John 20:29 Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.