

A close-up photograph of a single, vibrant red rose in full bloom. The rose is positioned slightly to the left of the center, with its petals showing a rich, deep red color. The background is a soft, out-of-focus green, suggesting foliage. Overlaid on the image is white text in a serif font, which reads: "Matthew 18:09 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire." The text is arranged in seven lines, with the first line starting at the top left and the final line ending near the bottom center, partially overlapping the rose and the green background.

Matthew 18:09 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire.