

A scenic photograph of a waterfall cascading into a pool of water. In the foreground, a large, weathered piece of driftwood lies on a rocky shore. The water is dark and rippling, and the surrounding foliage is lush and green.

Genesis 09:15 And I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.