

Psalm 103:09 He will not always chide: neither will he keep his anger for ever.

A photograph of a winter landscape. In the foreground, a stream flows over a large, flat rock covered in a thick layer of snow. The water is dark and appears to be melting through the snow. The background consists of more rocks and snow-covered ground, with some dry, brown grasses visible on the right side. The lighting is soft, suggesting a low sun, creating a serene and somewhat somber atmosphere.