

Ephesians 04:20 But ye have not so learned Christ;

A close-up, high-angle photograph of a dense field of petunias. The flowers are in various shades of pink, magenta, and purple, with some showing lighter, almost white, variegated patterns. The petals are trumpet-shaped and have a slightly ruffled edge. The centers of the flowers are a pale yellowish-green. Interspersed among the flowers are small, bright green leaves and stems, some of which are still in bud. The overall composition is a rich, textured mosaic of color.
