

A photograph of a stone wall made of large, rectangular, reddish-brown blocks. A path of similar stones leads through the wall from the background towards the foreground. To the left of the path, there are larger, darker, more irregular rocks. The background shows a blurred green area, possibly a garden or park. The text is overlaid in white, bold, sans-serif font.

Revelation 05:04 And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.