

A photograph of a single yellow tulip flower in bloom, positioned in the center-left of the frame. The flower is surrounded by several long, green, lance-shaped leaves. The ground is covered in a thick layer of brown wood mulch. To the right, a grey wooden fence with vertical slats is visible. The text is overlaid in white, serif font across the upper half of the image.

Jeremiah 51:43 Her cities are a desolation, a dry land, and a wilderness, a land wherein no man dwelleth, neither doth any son of man pass thereby.