

Isaiah 49:16 Behold, I have graven
thee upon the palms of my hands;
thy walls are continually before me.

A blue-tinted photograph of a landscape with bare trees and mountains in the background. The text is overlaid in white. The scene is a winter or late autumn landscape with many bare trees in the foreground and middle ground. In the distance, there are rolling hills or mountains under a pale, overcast sky. The overall mood is quiet and contemplative. The text is centered in the upper half of the image.
