

A close-up photograph of a sliced watermelon. The watermelon is cut into several slices, showing the red flesh and green rind. A black beetle with white markings on its back is crawling on one of the slices. The background is a soft, out-of-focus red and orange color.

1st Samuel 11:11 And it was so on the morrow, that Saul put the people in three companies; and they came into the midst of the host in the morning watch, and slew the Ammonites until the heat of the day: and it came to pass, that they which remained were scattered, so that two of them were