

A close-up photograph of a sunflower head, showing the dark brown center and the golden-brown petals. The sunflower is positioned in the center of the frame, and its seeds are being harvested, with some seeds falling away from the head. The background is a warm, golden-brown color, suggesting a field of sunflowers or a similar outdoor setting. The text is overlaid on the image in a white, serif font.

John 09:18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.