

A photograph of a massive glacier, likely the Perito Moreno Glacier, with a small boat in the foreground. The glacier is a mix of white and grey, showing deep crevasses and a rugged surface. The water in the foreground is dark and calm, reflecting the light. The sky is not visible, focusing the viewer's attention on the scale of the ice.

Heb 10:26 For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins.