

A close-up photograph of a field of lupines. The image shows several tall, slender stems with clusters of small, bell-shaped flowers in shades of pink and blue. The leaves are bright green and have a distinctive palmate shape with several leaflets. The background is a soft-focus field of similar plants, creating a sense of depth. The text is overlaid in the upper half of the image.

Matthew 18:15 Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother.