

A close-up photograph of a bouquet of flowers. The primary focus is on numerous bright red geraniums with multiple petals, clustered together. A few single yellow flowers are interspersed among the red ones. The leaves are a deep green and have a lobed, scalloped shape. The background is softly blurred, showing more greenery and a hint of a white structure, possibly a window or a wall. The overall lighting is bright and natural, highlighting the textures and colors of the flowers.
