

A photograph of a rocky coastline. The foreground is dominated by large, light-colored, jagged rocks. In the middle ground, waves are crashing against the shore, creating white foam. The background shows a clear blue sky and a distant horizon line. The overall scene is bright and clear.

Luk 14:33 So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.