

A close-up photograph of a white poinsettia flower. The flower has large, broad, white bracts with prominent veins. In the center, there is a cluster of small, green, unopened buds. The background is dark, making the white flower stand out.

Job 41:11 Who hath prevented me, that I should repay him?
whatsoever is under the whole heaven is mine.