

A photograph of a stone wall under construction. The wall is built with large, irregular, light-colored stones. At the base of the wall, a large, dark, wrinkled tarp is spread out on the ground. The ground is dirt and there are some rocks scattered around. In the background, there are green plants and trees. The text is overlaid on the image in a white, serif font.

14 They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish.