

A close-up photograph of a snow-covered landscape. The foreground is dominated by a large, rounded mound of snow, with a small stream or channel of water visible on its right side. The background shows more snow-covered hills and a small stream winding through the landscape. The overall scene is bright and serene, with a soft, hazy atmosphere.

Ezekiel 21:30 Shall I cause it to return into his sheath? I will judge thee in the place where thou wast created, in the land of thy nativity.