

A close-up photograph of blackberry bushes. The branches are covered with clusters of small, round berries in various stages of ripeness, ranging from bright red to deep black. The leaves are green with some showing signs of aging or damage, including small holes and reddish-brown spots. The background is a soft-focus field of similar bushes, creating a sense of a large, healthy thicket.

Ezekiel 46:11 And in the feasts and in the solemnities the meat offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambs as he is able to give, and an hin of oil to an ephah.