

A close-up photograph of a snow-covered plant stem with several branches, set against a bright, hazy background. The snow is thick and white, covering the entire plant. The background is a soft, out-of-focus mix of white and light yellow, suggesting a bright, sunny day. The text is overlaid in the center of the image.

Hesbon is in the valley,
and we have gone even unto Nophan, where we reach unto Mead.