

A scenic view of a rocky shoreline. The foreground and middle ground are dominated by numerous smooth, grey-brown rocks of various sizes. Many of these rocks are partially covered with a layer of bright white snow. A shallow stream of water flows through the rocks, its surface shimmering with bright, golden reflections from the sun. The background shows a continuation of the rocky shore, with more snow-covered rocks and a clear blue sky. The overall atmosphere is bright and crisp, suggesting a winter or early spring setting.
